SEEDLESS WATERMELON

SWEET FINE FLAVOR — ICE BOX SIZE

If you have customers growing for nearby markets and roadside stands, be sure to recommend this fine seedless watermelon of which the Agricultural Experiment Station, Lexington, Kentucky says in Progress Report #15 —

"Japanese seedless watermelons have produced fruits of outstanding quality and flavor during the three years of trial at the Horticultural Farm, Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. A considerable number of the new and standard varieties of regular watermelons have also been on trial during this period, but none consistently produced fruits as high in quality as the Japanese seedless melons."

"Fruit quality as in preceding years, was excellent. The change in under-side color of the fruits from white to cream to light yellow was again found to be an excellent index to harvesting fruits at peak quality."

"Fruits produced by the pollinating varieties Rhode Island Red and Honey Cream were of good quality, but they could not compare favorably with the excellent quality of the seedless watermelons."

"Reports from over 100 people who tasted the seedless watermelon from this experiment were very favorable as to quality and flavor. The School of Home Economics considered the rather small size as a definite advantage considering the ease of storing in a home refrigerator and the fact that one melon cut in four parts made very desirable-sized servings."

Beside the sale of the ripe fruit, spring time sale of seedless watermelon plants, in bands, is profitable. Suggest this to your grower-customers.

Write for dealer prices and list Seedless Watermelon Seed in your next catalogue.

1954 crop prices are — 25 seeds $1.00; 100 seeds $3.00;
500 seeds $10.00; 1000 seeds $18.00.
